U.S. Port Plan Stirs Anxieties

Ehrlich, Pataki raise worries about Arab-owned operator

WASHINGTON | Two Republican governors on Monday questioned a Bush administration decision allowing an Arab-owned company to operate six major U.S. ports, saying they may try to cancel lease arrangements at ports in their states.

New York Gov. George Pataki and Maryland Gov. Robert Ehrlich voiced doubts about the acquisition of a British company that has been running the U.S. ports by Dubai Ports World, a state-owned business in the United Arab Emirates. The British company, Peninsular and Oriental, runs major commercial operations at ports in Baltimore, Miami, New Jersey, New Orleans, New York and Philadelphia.

Ehrlich

Ehrlich, concerned about security at the Port of Baltimore, said Monday he is "very troubled" that Maryland officials got no advance notice before the Bush administration approved an Arab company's takeover of the operations at the six ports.

The state of Maryland is considering its options, up to and including voiding the contract for the Port of Baltimore, Ehrlich said.

Bush administration officials, including Homeland Security Secretary Michael Chertoff and Attorney General Alberto Gonzales, have defended the decision. Gonzales said the administration had a "very extensive process" for reviewing such transactions that "takes into account matters of national security." (AP)

THROAT-CLEARING | No Worse for the Hardware Thirty-five years ago, a Placerville, Calif., man was left with a nail lodged in his throat after a bizarre lawn mowing accident. It eventually dropped down his body and nestled into a space in his ribcage, where doctors decided to leave it. Now it's out. Guy Hart, now 84, coughed up the nail while brushing his teeth earlier this month. He's now keeping it in a small plastic bag. Doctors said they have no reason to think the nail will have any lasting negative effect on Hart's health. (AP) EyeOpeners | Page 2

TREE COSTUMES

A Cardinal Sin

The Stanford University tree has been toppled for being drunk on the job. The student wearing the costume of the mascot was suspended from duty after UC Berkeley police saw her drinking from a flask during a Stanford-Cal basketball game earlier this month, officials said. "She was taking drinks inside the tree," said Kevin Klintworth, assistant athletic director at Cal. "The officers could see the flask through the costume." Erin Lashnits, an undergraduate biology student, was given a breath test shortly after halftime of the Feb. 9 game at Haas Pavilion. Authorities said the test showed she had a blood alcohol level of 0.15 percent, nearly twice the legal limit for driving. (AP)

Please Only Call on Nights and Weekends

Malaysia's works minister was swamped with 2,600 text messages and hundreds of calls on his cell phone after he asked the public to direct their complaints to him. S. Samy Vellu said his phone has not stopped ringing since he gave out his number during a television show on Sunday after viewers complained about inefficiency at his ministry. "I received so many calls and messages, that I think my phone may quit on me soon," he said. But he said only 200 text messages were complaints about problems such as poor road drainage or traffic lights that were not working. More than 1,000 were congratulatory messages, he said. (AP)

Fire-escape makers, you guys missed your chance at an untapped market. Escape Rescue Systems' invention for escaping from tall buildings in an emergency has been successfully demonstrated on an office building in Ramat Gan, Israel. Was Then Hired as an Economics Teacher

A Pensacola, Fla., middle school gym teacher let children sit out his class if they paid him $1 a day, collecting perhaps thousands of dollars, officials said Thursday. Authorities said Terence Braxton — who taught a total of 250 students — took the payoffs between September and December, resigning after the principal learned of the scheme from a parent. The charges accuse him of taking about $230 from six students, but police said the teacher's take was probably much greater. Braxton turned himself in on bribery charges and was released without bail. "It's not bad if you can make an extra $100 a day tax-free," district spokesman Ronnie Arnold said. (AP)

Officials Say Latest Church Fire Not Linked to Arsons

A suspicious fire did minor damage to the exterior of a small church, but authorities said Monday it does not appear to be linked to a string of suspected arsons that have damaged or destroyed 10 rural churches in Alabama. Investigators believe the fire at the small church in Glencoe was started by someone from the area. Sunday's fire began outside the church building; the earlier blazes were started inside buildings, mostly near the pulpit. (AP)

Bush Touts New Energy Initiatives

U.S. dependence on oil is a national security problem, president says

MILWAUKEE | Saying the nation is on the verge of technological breakthroughs that would "startle" most Americans, President Bush on Monday outlined his energy proposals to help wean the country off foreign oil.

Less than half the crude oil used by refineries is produced in the United States, while 60 percent comes from foreign nations, Bush said during the first stop on a two-day trip to talk about energy.

"It creates a national security issue and we're held hostage for energy by foreign nations that may not like us," Bush said.

One of Bush's proposals would expand research into smaller, longer-lasting batteries for electric-gas hybrid cars, including plug-ins. He highlighted that initiative with a visit Monday to the battery center at Milwaukee-based auto-parts supplier Johnson Controls Inc.

PABLO MARTINEZ MONSIVAIS/AP

President Bush tours an energy company with scientist Subhendu Guha Monday.

During his trip, Bush is also focusing on a proposal to increase investment in development of clean electric power sources, and proposals to speed the development of biofuels such as "cellulosic" ethanol made from wood chips or sawgrass.

Energy conservation groups and environmentalists say they're pleased that the president, a former oil man in Texas, is stressing alternative sources of energy, but they contend his proposals don't go far enough. They say the administration must consider greater fuel-efficiency standards for cars, and some economists believe it's best to increase the gas tax to force consumers to change their driving habits.

On Tuesday, Bush plans to visit the Energy Department's National Renewable Energy Laboratory in Golden, Colo., to talk about speeding the development of biofuels.

The lab, with a looming $28 million budget shortfall, had announced it was cutting its staff by 32 people, including eight researchers. But in advance of Bush's visit, Energy Secretary Samuel Bodman over the weekend directed the transfer of $5 million to the private contractor that runs the lab, so the jobs can be saved. Prosecutors Seek Jail for Teen Killer

ALAMOGORDO, N.M. | A teenager convicted of killing his family on newsman Sam Donaldson's ranch is a psychopath who cannot be rehabilitated, a prosecutor said Monday at the boy's sentencing hearing.

But Posey's attorney contended the teen was traumatized by years of abuse and that he is amenable to treatment.

Posey was convicted earlier this month of murder in the deaths of his stepmother and 13-year-old stepsister and voluntary manslaughter in the death of his father. (AP)

RadioShack CEO Quits Amid Questions

DALLAS | RadioShack Corp.'s embattled president and CEO, David Edmondson, resigned Monday following questions about his resume's accuracy.

The Fort Worth electronics retailer said in a statement that its board had accepted his resignation and had promoted Claire Babrowski, who most recently served as executive vice president and chief operating officer, to acting CEO.

The Fort Worth company said last week that it would hire outside lawyers to investigate errors in Edmondson's resume, including claims that he earned two college degrees for which the school he attended has no records. That investigation won't continue since Edmondson quit, the company said. (AP)

U.S. Warns China on Trade

Bush administration to pressure Beijing on practices, currency

WASHINGTON | The administration's new get-tough approach with China could involve filing trade charges against the Asian giant over auto parts and copyright piracy and branding the Chinese as currency manipulators. But the betting is that the harder line won't have much impact, at least right away, on the soaring U.S. trade deficit, which hit an all-time high of $726 billion last year.

It is that deficit that is getting a lot of attention in Washington, especially the one-fourth of the deficit that is accounted for by a single country — the $202 billion trade gap with China.

Portman

That figure prompted howls of protest in Congress. Lawmakers contended it showed President Bush is not doing enough to counter China's unfair trade practices, which they contend have contributed to the loss of nearly 3 million U.S. manufacturing jobs since mid-2000.

Hoping to head that off, the administration last week unveiled its own get-tough strategy, a 29-page "top-to-bottom review" of trade relations between the two nations.

U.S. Trade Representative Rob Portman announced the creation of a new China enforcement task force in his office. He indicated that without progress soon in two areas of tension — high Chinese tariffs imposed on American auto parts and continued widespread copyright piracy of American products — the administration would probably file unfair trade cases against China before the World Trade Organization.

La. Gov. Unveils Gulf Reconstruction Plans

$7.5B proposal would give residents monetary help to rebuild homes

LAKE CHARLES, LA. | Gov. Kathleen Blanco outlined a $7.5 billion rebuilding, relocation and buyout plan Monday for thousands of residents whose homes remain damaged or destroyed after last year's hurricanes.

It is Louisiana's first comprehensive housing proposal since Hurricane Katrina devastated the Gulf Coast in August, followed a month later by Hurricane Rita.

Assistance would be capped at a maximum $150,000 per homeowner under the proposal. But direct relief is still months away, and homeowners receiving the aid could be taking on more debt to rebuild.

The draft faces scrutiny from local officials, state lawmakers and the affected residents; and it depends in large part on federal dollars awaiting congressional approval.

But the plan represents a significant step in using billions of already available federal recovery dollars. MELINDA DESLATTE (AP)

Holder of Winning Powerball Ticket Still a Mystery

LINCOLN, NEB. | Whoever won the nation's biggest jackpot has an invitation to return to the convenience store where the winning ticket was bought and share the wealth.

"If I sold the ticket to them I hope they'd share in the winnings — at least, even one-tenth of a percent would suit me just fine," said Stacey Carey, a clerk at the U-Stop.

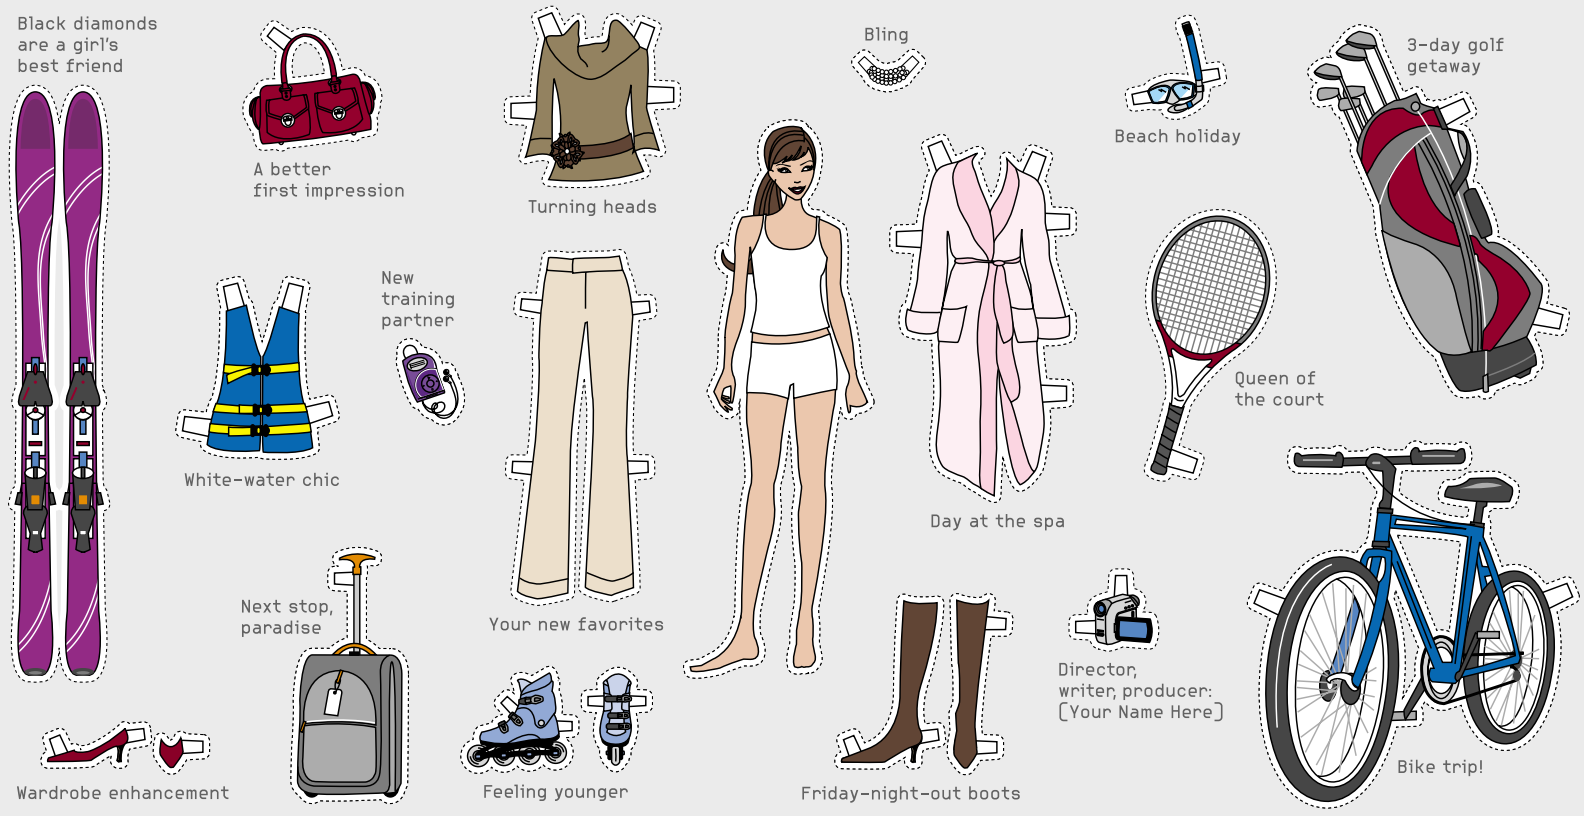

No one came forward Sunday to claim the record $365 million Powerball jackpot. With the office closed for Presidents Day, the winner may not be known until Tuesday, if then.

Jim Haynes, acting director of the Nebraska Lottery, said large jackpot winners "tend to wait until they have sought legal counsel or financial counsel." (AP)

India Hunts for Flu Victims

Search held for people with avian virus; EU officials weigh options

SEBASTIAN D'SOUZA/AFP/GETTY IMAGES

Health workers wearing protective suits dump slaughtered chickens in a pit at a poultry farm on Monday located in Navapur, the area of India's first bird flu outbreak.

NAVAPUR, INDIA | Indian health officials went door-to-door Monday searching for people sickened by the deadly bird flu strain, while hundreds of German troops disposed of dead wild birds in a desperate attempt to contain the fast-moving disease in Europe.

In Brussels, Belgium, European Union agriculture ministers discussed ways to combat bird flu — such as by vaccinating poultry — as the disease spread to half-a-dozen EU nations.

With India conducting a mass slaughter of birds for a second day Monday, plumes of black smoke filled the air as farmers burned dead chickens in the now-deserted poultry farms around Navapur.

Local officials near the affected area reported that a 27-year-old poultry farm owner died of bird flu-like symptoms, though tests had yet to determine the cause of death. Samples from at least eight other people hospitalized for flu-like symptoms near Navapur also were being tested.

Inspectors visited homes and farms surrounding Navapur, a town of 30,000 people, searching for signs of illness and making sure even chickens being raised at private homes were killed and properly disposed of.

"It's like a war — they come in completely covered with masks and goggles and check if the carcasses are disposed properly," said Ghulam Vhora, of the Navapur poultry farmers' association. ASHOK SHARMA (AP)

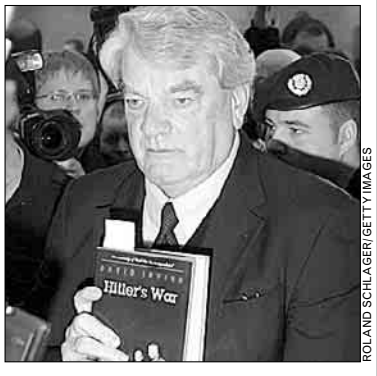

Briton Gets Jail Time For Holocaust Denial

VIENNA, AUSTRIA | Right-wing British historian David Irving was sentenced to three years in prison Monday after admitting to an Austrian court that he denied the Holocaust — a crime in the country where Hitler was born.

Irving, who pleaded guilty and then insisted during his one-day trial that he now acknowledged the Nazis' World War II slaughter of 6 million Jews, had faced up to 10 years behind bars. Before the verdict, Irving conceded he had erred in contending there were no gas chambers at the Auschwitz concentration camp.

"I made a mistake when I said there were no gas chambers at Auschwitz," Irving testified, at one point expressing sorrow "for all the innocent people who died during the Second World War."

Irving has been in custody since his November arrest on charges stemming from two speeches he gave in Austria in 1989 in which he was accused of denying the Nazis' extermination of 6 million Jews.

Rescuers Search For 65 Trapped Mexican Miners

SAN JUAN DE SABINAS, MEXICO | Rescue workers using picks, shovels and their hands tunneled feverishly through dirt, wood, metal and rock on Monday to reach 65 coal miners trapped by a gas explosion 600 feet underground.

Officials said that while it was unlikely the miners were still alive, there was still a chance of finding survivors.

Priests and pastors above led hundreds of the miners' friends and relatives in prayer for the men trapped by Sunday morning's explosion at the Pasta de Conchos mine near the town of San Juan de Sabinas.

The trapped men had carried only six hours of oxygen, and officials said they believed a ventilation system that uses huge fans to pump in fresh air and suck out dangerous gases was still working. (AP)

U.S. Envoy Warns on Iraq's Divisions

Khalilzad signals that U.S. won't support sectarian institutions

BAGHDAD, IRAQ | The U.S. ambassador delivered a blunt warning to Iraqi leaders Monday that they risk losing American support unless they establish a national unity government with the police and the army out of the hands of religious parties.

Ambassador Zalmay Khalilzad delivered the warning as another 24 people, including a U.S. soldier, died in a string of bombings, underscoring the need for the country to establish a government capable of winning the trust of all communities.

Khalilzad

During a rare news conference, Khalilzad said division among the country's sectarian and ethnic communities was "the fundamental problem in Iraq," fueling the Sunni Arab-dominated insurgency and the wave of reprisal killings.

"To overcome this there is a need for a government of national unity," which "is the difference between what exists now and the next government," he said. The outgoing government is dominated by Shiites and Kurds.

To underscore his remarks, Khalilzad reminded the Iraqis that the U.S. has spent billions to build up Iraq's police and army and said "we are not going to invest the resources of the American people and build forces that are run by people who are sectarian" and tied to the militias — some of which the ambassador said received "arms and training" from Iran.

British Foreign Secretary Jack Straw, who arrived in Baghdad late Monday, was expected to reinforce Khalilzad's message during meetings with Prime Minister Ibrahim al-Jaafari and other leaders. (AP)

HELPING HAND: U.S. Marines assist in efforts Monday to uncover an elementary school buried in a landslide in the Philippines.

Rescue Efforts Persist in Philippines

'Signs of life' detected at site where school was buried in mudslide

GUINSAUGON, PHILIPPINES | Rescue workers refused to give up hope of finding survivors in an elementary school buried by up to 100 feet of mud, digging into the night Monday after detecting what the provincial governor called "signs of life."

Sounds of scratching and a rhythmic tapping were picked up by seismic sensors and sound-detection gear brought in by U.S. and Malaysian forces.

"The adrenaline is high ... now that we have seen increasing signs of life," South Leyte Gov. Rosette Lerias said.

Still, it was hard to imagine survivors under the wet muck nearly four days after a mountainside collapsed and covered the farming village of Guinsaugon, killing up to 1,000 people. No one has been pulled out alive since just a few hours after the disaster Friday.

The search has focused on the school because of unconfirmed reports that some of the 250-300 children and teachers may have sent cell phone text messages to relatives soon after the disaster Friday.

Under the glare of generator-powered lights, a multinational group of troops and technicians used high-tech gear like seismic sensors and sound- and heat-detection equipment alongside shovels and rescue dogs. They finally halted about 3 a.m. Tuesday until daybreak.

A U.S. military spokesman said late Monday that U.S. Marines digging at the site had found bodies, but no survivors. OLIVER TEVES (AP)

Palestinian PM Tapped By Hamas

GAZA CITY, GAZA STRIP | Hamas presented a pragmatic former university administrator as its choice for Palestinian prime minister Monday and the Islamic militant group reached out to Fatah and other factions to join a broad-based Cabinet that might stand a chance of gaining international approval.

Officials said Palestinian leader Mahmoud Abbas would give Ismail Haniyeh his formal letter of appointment on Tuesday, a critical step toward installing the first government to be headed by Hamas.

Haniyeh

Haniyeh, 43, told reporters after meeting with Abbas that he would try to form a joint government with Fatah, the traditional Palestinian ruling party that Hamas trounced in last month's parliamentary election. So far, Fatah has refused to join.

Separately, Iran and Egypt's Muslim Brotherhood both called for Muslims on Monday to give money to a Hamas-led Palestinian government, disregarding the U.S. campaign to stop the flow of funding to the militant group. (AP)

Pr. George's Officials Back O'Malley

Eleven county leaders say Baltimore mayor is their pick for governor

BLADENSBURG, MD. | Baltimore Mayor Martin O'Malley continued his push to become the Democratic candidate for mayor on Monday, picking up the endorsements of 11 leaders in Prince George's County.

Democratic leaders from the county, including delegates Jim Hubbard and Joanne Benson, said O'Malley's record in Baltimore and his perceived willingness to work with the legislature make him the preferred candidate.

SARAH L. VOISIN/TWP

Maryland gubernatorial candidate Martin O'Malley speaks with Prince George's Co. resident Herbert L. Beall after a speech in Hyattsville earlier this month.

"I want somebody who can work with me and who has already proven they can work with me and many of my colleagues," Hubbard said.

O'Malley and running mate Delegate Anthony Brown stayed on their message of trying to create a "better, stronger Maryland."

O'Malley pushed the issues of education and crime, which have been sore spots in the county. "When we combat our common enemies of drug addiction and violent crime, no county, including Prince George's, should be left to fight on its own," O'Malley said. ASHTON WILLIAMS (AP)

Va. Lt. Gov. Casts First Tiebreaking Vote in Senate

RICHMOND, VA | Lt. Gov. Bill Bolling cast his first tie-breaking vote Monday, killing a bill that would have placed a former inmate or a relative of a prisoner on the state Board of Correctional Education.

When the 20-20 tally showed up on the Senate's electronic voting board, the first-term lieutenant governor announced: "The chair votes no. The bill fails to pass." The legislation originally required the governor to appoint three educators, one elected official and one immediate relative of an inmate to the board. (AP)

Va. House OKs Longer Gay Marriage Ban Text

Legislation would put proposed amendment's full wording on ballot

RICHMOND, VA | Legislation placing the full text of a gay marriage ban on the November ballot is heading to Gov. Timothy M. Kaine for his consideration.

The House of Delegates on Monday unanimously passed a bill approved by the Senate last week providing that voters see the entire text of a constitutional amendment to ban gay marriage — not just a summary — when they vote.

Kaine can veto the so-called enabling legislation outlining the language of the ballot question, but not the proposed amendment.

Opponents of the gay-marriage ban argued a summary was misleading because voters would not realize they were also voting to prohibit civil unions. Critics of the legislation also contend the constitutional amendment's wording is so broad it could prohibit contracts between all unmarried couples.

Kaine

The bill's sponsor, Del. John Cosgrove, R-Chesapeake, urged his fellow lawmakers to accept the amended legislation, but also noted that constitutional amendments have traditionally been summarized on the ballot.

"This has never been done before," Cosgrove said. KRISTEN GELINEAU (AP)

Man Charged in 'Oprah'-Trip Scam

UPPER MARLBORO, MD. | The head of a travel business was indicted on theft charges for allegedly stealing money from elderly fans of Oprah Winfrey, authorities said Monday.

Terrance M. Hawkins of Temple Hills, Md., faced 17 theft counts. Prosecutors said Hawkins charged $500 per person for a bus trip to Chicago and tickets to see a taping of the talk show queen's program, but never delivered.

They said he ran a business known both as Royal Travel and Royal Stages Travel Group, and booked the trips between December 2004 and April 2005. (AP)

Deal Will Convert Field into Ballpark

McLean residents had been worried the space would become condos

MCLEAN | It's one small step for kids, one giant leap for open space.

Instead of becoming another housing development, a grassy field on Route 123 will soon be a ball field, thanks to an agreement between an ex-lawmaker's family and the Fairfax County Park Authority.

At a time when developers are hungry for land, residents and conservationists see the future ball fields as a victory for quality of life. The issue is significant for McLean residents who were upset in 1999 when Evans Farm was sold to a developer who planned 144 condos and townhomes on the 24-acre property.

Fairfax County Supervisor Joan DuBois said the difference is the Evans Farm owner wanted to sell the property to a developer. But relatives of former State Senator Charles DuVal preferred to come up with a way to preserve the property and the home.

GERALD MARTINEAU/TWP

The field won't share the fate of Evans Farm, where these condos now stand.

Late in 2005, the Board of Supervisors agreed to spend $16 million to purchase a conservation easement on the 41 acre property. The family could have gotten more than double from developers.

"It's very generous of them," said DuBois. "It's a win-win for everyone. It preserves the land, lets the DuVals live there and gives us some sorely needed active recreation centers." HEATHER GREENFIELD (AP)

Gas Prices in D.C. Area Ease Slightly

WASHINGTON | Drivers out and about over the Presidents Day weekend were paying less for gas in the Washington area compared to a month ago, AAA Mid-Atlantic said Monday.

The auto club's latest survey found the average price for a gallon of self-serve regular was $2.31, down seven cents.

The recent decline followed a jump of nearly 20 cents a gallon between December and January.

Still, the region's average remained seven cents higher than the national average of $2.24. (AP)

Trying to Crack the E-Book

Low-cost electronic versions of textbooks have few takers in class

GOING DIGITAL | Brown University junior Stuart Thompson jumped at the chance to save $30 and become a digital pioneer when his school offered a discounted, electronic version of a history textbook.

But after making the purchase, he noticed a few things amiss: He couldn't run a highlighter over key points or jot notes in the margins, nor could he curl up with the tome without printing out the pages.

So much for the belief that this generation of youths wants everything digital: The publishing industry has been talking about electronic textbooks for a decade already, but sales remain minuscule.

STEPHAN SAVOIA/AP

Larry Carr of Brown University's bookstore has only sold one e-book to date.

Of the 100 or so students enrolled in the course where Houghton Mifflin Co.'s "A People and a Nation" is assigned, Thompson was the only student to buy the electronic version.

Brown is offering two other e-textbooks this semester, but none of the 150 students in those classes has bought one, even at 35 percent off the price of a new printed copy.

Students are going to have to see more value in e-textbooks before they take off, said Larry Carr, Brown's bookstore director.

"We're in the first phase, with electronic doing what the traditional paper has done," said C. Sidney Burrus, former dean of engineering at Rice University and an e-book author. "Nothing's really novel."

Publishers say they are willing to accept lower margins on e-books for now while they figure out the technology.

"A lot of people's perceptions is that e-books, that can't cost publishers anything," said Ginny Moffat of McGraw-Hill. "Most of the publisher's cost is not in paper ... most of it is in editorial, reviewing content, making sure it's accurate." (AP)

GOLD STANDARDS

➜ Thomas Morgenstern picked up his second gold medal of the Turin Games and a piece of Austrian Olympic history. Not bad for a 19-year-old making his Olympic debut. Morgenstern soared 140.5 meters in the final jump Monday, leading Austria to the gold medal in the team ski jumping event.

OTHER DEVELOPMENTS

➜ Jeret "Speedy" Peterson was the lone American of four to advance to finals in men's aerials Monday, a disappointing effort for a U.S. freestyle team considered one of the best in the world.

➜ Canada clinched the fourth and final spot in the medal round with a late rally that secured a 6-3 win over the U.S. in men's curling. The Americans (6-3) had already wrapped up a spot in the medal round.

FLAG DAY: Benjamin Agosto and Tanith Belbin, wearing their silver medals, unravel a U.S. flag after the ice dancing Monday.

Silver Lining for Americans

Duo earns first medal for the United States in ice dancing since 1976

ICE DANCING | At last, a figure skating medal for the United States — in ice dancing, of all things. And yet another Olympic gold for Russia.

Tanith Belbin and partner Ben Agosto snapped the U.S. medals drought in figure skating with a silver Monday night. They were behind Tatiana Navka and Roman Kostomarov, who gave Russia a gold medal hat trick — pairs, men's and dance. No nation has swept the four skating events in one games, and Russian Irina Slutskaya is favored in the women's competition.

"I am extremely proud that we've been able to achieve this for our country," said the Canadian-born Belbin, who became a U.S. citizen on Dec. 31.

"It's only our first Olympics. We're competing with second- and third-time Olympians, so this is great to come here and get a medal the first time out when we didn't even know we'd be here. Can't ask for more."

Belbin and Agosto won the first dance medal for the United States since a bronze in 1976 by Colleen O'Connor and Jim Millns. It also is the only medal for American figure skaters thus far at these Olympics.

Elena Grushina and Ruslan Goncharov of Ukraine won the bronze.

All three couples performed with poise and style. Even better, nobody crashed to the ice.

Sunday's original dance was marred by falls and an injury that forced the top Canadians out of the free dance. BARRY WILNER (AP)

Embattled Ski Coach in Psych Ward

DOPING | An Austrian ski coach who bolted the Winter Games following a surprise anti-doping raid wound up in a psychiatric hospital — the latest stop on his bizarre flight from Turin, where authorities were still analyzing 100 syringes and other material seized from athletes' housing.

Authorities took Walter Mayer into custody Sunday after he crashed his car into a police blockade 15 miles inside Austria's border with Italy. Police later took him to a psychiatric facility, Austria's ski federation president Peter Schroecksnadel told The Associated Press.

Mayer

"Apparently he's still in there," Schroecksnadel said Monday. "I believe that there was a danger of suicide."

Mayer was banished from the Olympics over allegations of blood doping at the 2002 Olympics in Salt Lake City. He resurfaced with the team in Turin, triggering police raids late Saturday — the first-ever doping sweep by police on athletes competing at the games.

Against the backdrop of the most stringent drug controls in Winter Games history, local authorities seized the syringes and 30 packages of antidepressants and asthma medication, Italian prosecutor Raffaele Guariniello told Austrian television. One Austrian athlete threw a bag out of a window containing needles and medicines, the Italian news agency ANSA reported. JOHN PYE (AP)

Bode Miller was gasping for breath after each run of the giant slalom.

In Turin, a White Out For Miller

Brash American skier misses out on another chance to earn a medal

SKIING | All those Olympic medals Bode Miller insists he can live without? Turns out he also believes they could just as easily be his.

Instead, they're going to other skiers — and other countries.

Miller is down to one final chance at the Turin Games after tying for sixth in the giant slalom Monday, when Benjamin Raich ended his own string of Olympic disappointments by leading a gold-bronze Austrian finish.

Through four of five men's Alpine races, Miller has finished no better than fifth place in the downhill. He was leading the combined when he was disqualified; he didn't finish the super-G after slamming into a gate.

"If things went well," he told The Associated Press, "I could be sitting on four medals, maybe all of them gold."

After each run Monday, the 28-year-old from Franconia, N.H., doubled over, hands on knees, gasping for air. "Against those guys right now," he acknowledged as he walked away from the hill and toward his private RV, "that won't do." HOWARD FENDRICH (AP)

U.S. Settles for the Bronze

Americans take out disappointment on Finland in consolation

WOMEN'S HOCKEY | Katie King wishes she could've thrown her gloves in the air like a graduation cap and jumped into a pile of her teammates on the ice. Instead, she and the rest of the U.S. women's hockey team had to settle for some hugs — and a bronze medal.

King scored two of her three goals in the first period to give the Americans a three-goal lead and they glided to a 4-0 victory over Finland on Monday, playing in a third-place game they would've rather watched on TV from their dressing room.

"It's hard to be excited because we came for gold," forward Kim Insalaco said.

One game too late, the U.S. hustled to loose pucks, finished checks and showcased superior talent in a dominating performance.

What do they have to show from the consolation match? As three-time Olympian Angela Ruggiero said Sunday, America's women's hockey veterans — herself, King, Tricia Dunn-Luoma and Jenny Potter — now have a complete set of Olympic medals: gold from Nagano, silver from Salt Lake City, and now bronze from the Turin Games. Canada Dominates Sweden for Gold

WOMEN'S HOCKEY | No more Swedish surprises. Hockey is Canada's game, and this gold-medal match was a fitting finale for the most dominant women's team ever assembled.

The Canadians scored with pinpoint passes and dazzling pirouettes, soft wrist shots and firm tip-ins. The 4-1 victory Monday wasn't the rematch with the U.S. everyone expected, but Canada still sent upstart Sweden home.

When the fourth goal bulged Swedish goalie Kim Martin's net, the teenager shrugged her shoulders slightly and looked straight ahead — perhaps all the way to Vancouver in four years, when the world might have a chance against Canada. (AP)

Kolzig Represents for Germany in Olympics

Capitals goalie takes an unexpected route to international team

HOCKEY | Olie Kolzig's Olympic adventure will end today, when Germany will close out its schedule against undefeated Finland.

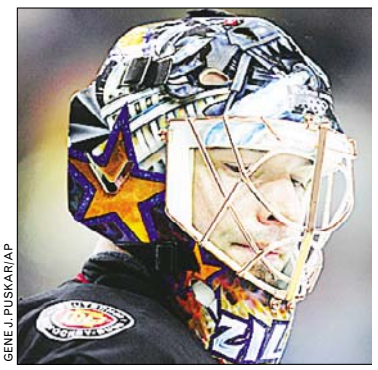

Having become accustomed this season to backstopping a team often overmatched by superior opponents, the Capitals' goalie has played well for the 0-2-2 Germans, tying two of his three games and posting a 2.68 goals against average.

Those are the details. The real story is how an athlete born in South Africa and raised in Canada came to represent his parents' homeland.

After living in South Africa, Kolzig and his parents moved to Canada, where as a teenager he tried out for the junior national team.

"We were filling out visa forms and I had too many numbers in my passport to fit in the box," Kolzig said. "A couple of hours later they told me 'I'm sorry, but you're not a full-blooded Canadian.'"

Kolzig still held only a German passport. He was drafted by the Capitals that year (1989) and concentrated on his pro career until Olie Kolzig is playing for mismatched Germany, which faces Finland Tuesday.

German Stefan Ustorf joined the Caps in 1995. Inspired, Kolzig sought and received permission to represent Germany and appeared in the 1996 World Cup of Hockey.

"I spoke German in the house until I was seven and visited my grandparents all the time," Kolzig said. "After the World Cup I felt more and more German."

He played only two games in the 1998 Olympics, having arrived in Nagano after Germany had been relegated to the consolation rounds. He missed the Salt Lake City games four years ago due to injury. At 35, Kolzig finally will play in an Olympics start to finish. "I'm going to soak it in," he said. BRIAN STRAUS

Hernandez Arrives at Nats Camp

On 31st birthday, ace proclaims his knee is on the road to recovery

NATIONALS | On his 31st birthday Monday, Washington Nationals ace Livan Hernandez awoke before dawn and drove 200 miles from Miami for an abbreviated spring training workout.

"I'm getting old. I don't want to celebrate," said Hernandez, even though a giant birthday cookie had been left for him on the clubhouse training table. "I want to stay home and sleep."

Hernandez arrived two days later than the other pitchers. He threw in the bullpen and did some baserunning drills, then rode away in a golf cart midway through the workout, skipping the fielding drills and batting practice.

HARAZN GHANBARI/AP

Hernandez uses a bat to help stretch on his first day at Spring Training on Monday.

Then came the serious work: getting his bothersome right knee completely healthy in time for opening day.

This year, more than ever, the Nationals need Hernandez to be his usual, reliable workhorse self. He and John Patterson are the only two pitchers assured of places in the starting rotation. The other three spots are the subject of a wide-open spring competition, so the last thing manager Frank Robinson needs is more uncertainty on the mound.

Therefore, Hernandez's medical self-diagnosis as he sat in front of his locker was of keen interest. He said he's not 100 percent, but he's not in pain. He's banking on what the doctor told him after his surgery on Oct. 5 — that all would be fine in six months.

That means Hernandez should be hitting all cylinders around April 5, two days after he's projected to open the season for the Nationals against the New York Mets. "The knee is going to be all right for the season," Hernandez said. "There's no hurt." JOSEPH WHITE (AP)

Curt Gowdy, one of the sports world's most famed announcers, died Monday.

Top Broadcaster Gowdy, 86, Dies

APPRECIATION | Curt Gowdy, one of the signature voices of sports for a generation and a longtime broadcaster for the Boston Red Sox, died Monday at 86. He died in Palm Beach after a long battle with leukemia, Red Sox spokeswoman Pam Ganley said.

Gowdy made his broadcasting debut in 1944 and went on to call the first Super Bowl in 1967 as well as 13 World Series and 16 All-Star games.

"He's certainly the greatest play-by-play person up to this point that NBC sports has ever had," NBC Universal Sports chairman Dick Ebersol said. "He literally carried the sports division at NBC for so many years on his back. ... He was a remarkable talent and he was an even more remarkable human being." (AP)

ORIOLES | All-Star second baseman Brian Roberts could miss the Baltimore Orioles' season opener because of the same elbow injury that cut short his finest season in the major leagues five months ago.

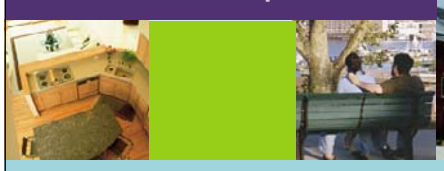

Roberts set career highs in batting average (.314), homers (18) and RBIs (73) before dislocating his left elbow in a Sept. 20 game against the Yankees. "My ultimate goal is still to play opening day. Still, we don't know for sure what it's going to be, at this point," he said Monday. (AP)

Colonials Climb to No. 6

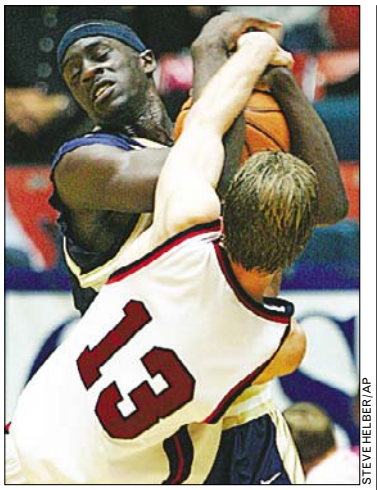

COLLEGE HOOPS | George Washington's men's basketball team is on the doorstep of the top 5 in the Associated Press poll.

The Colonials (22-1), who hold the nation's longest winning streak at 14 games, moved from seventh to sixth place Monday. It is George Washington's highest ranking since Feb. 15, 1955, when the school was No. 5 — the best showing in its history.

The ranking is the latest reward for a remarkable season that is sure to culminate in a trip to the NCAA Tournament, perhaps with a No. 3 seeding.

Georgetown remained the only other area team in the top 25, checking in at No. 23 after falling to Marquette and Villanova as part of its three-game losing streak.

Duke moved back to No. 1, replacing the only other team to hold the top spot this season. The Blue Devils (25-1) were second to Connecticut the last four weeks and they went back on top following the Huskies' loss to Villanova last week.

Pops Mensah-Bonsu and GW topped Richmond on the road on Saturday.

Villanova (21-2) jumped from fourth to second — matching the highest ranking in school history — and Connecticut (23-2) dropped to No. 3. Memphis (24-2) fell one place to fourth in the shake-up at the top.

Being No. 1 is nothing knew to Duke, which received 64 first-place votes and 1,789 points from the national media panel. The Blue Devils were on top of the preseason poll and then for the first 10 polls until losing at Georgetown on Jan. 21.

Duke, which has won eight straight and clinched at least a share of the Atlantic Coast Conference's regular-season title, has been No. 1 in 108 polls. That total is second to UCLA's 128 and well in front of Kentucky's 88, which is third. (EXPRESS/AP)

Sergio Mendes returns with a some help from his friends

BRAZILIA | It's been more than eight years since Sergio Mendes released an album, and many more since he had a major hit, but fans have conspired to bring the Brazilian pianist/arranger back to center stage with an adventuresome new recording.

"Timeless" is a joint venture between Concord/Hear Music and will.i.am music. Will.i.am of the Black Eyed Peas produced the album and appears on many of its tracks. Other guests include India.Arie, Q-Tip, Erykah Badu, John Legend and Justin Timberlake. India.Arie, Legend and Timberlake all wrote songs for the album.

"I wanted to do a hip-hop, samba-bossa nova record," said Will.i.am. With that spirit in mind, "Timeless," features mostly older songs retooled for contemporary appeal including, of course, "Mas Que Nada," the Jorge Ben track recorded by Mendes' group Brasil '66 for their first album. The international hit was many fans' first glimpse of Brazilian music.

BRAND-NEW BEAT: Brazilian music star Sergio Mendes with collaborator Will.i.am.

Brasil '66's biggest U.S hit was "The Look of Love," followed by the group's remake of the Beatles' "Fool on the Hill," which climbed to No. 6 in 1968.

"I hope kids hear the old melodies and enjoy them," Mendes said. "My kids think their dad is cool now. [Their] friends, some of them never heard these songs. That's the beauty of this project."

He had stopped recording, he says, "because I didn't have any motivation."

That changed when Will.i.am appeared at his doorstep three years ago, hoping to convince Mendes to play on a cut for a Black Eyed Peas album.

The result, Mendes said, "felt totally different. It felt great. I said, 'We should make a record together.'"

Just as Will.i.am was a fan of Mendes', so was Concord Music owner Hal Gaba. When he heard Mendes was recording with the Peas frontman, he signed him.

Concord presented the project to Starbucks and its label, Hear Music.

"Sergio is not only a pioneer who introduced Brazilian music to the world; this was just a great CD," Starbucks Entertainment president Ken Lombard said.

On DVD, 'All The President's Men' tells a true, timeless story

RECENT HISTORY | "All the President's Men," the classic 1976 film about Bob Woodward and Carl Bernstein's unraveling of the Watergate scandal, opens with hammering typewriter keystrokes that sound like gunshots.

Thirty years later, those shots — fired by relentless digging by two unlikely Washington Post reporters — still reverberate.

WARNER BROS./AP

Dustin Hoffman and Robert Redford play journalists as heroic muckrakers.

Today, when scandals over inaccuracy and allegations of softness plague the media, the film is frequently referenced as a beacon of a bygone era when journalists were seen as heroes.

Woodward and Bernstein, in real life and as played, respectively, by Robert Redford and Dustin Hoffman, were sharp-witted reporting sleuths, pursuing and exposing one of history's biggest governmental cover-ups.

The movie arrives today in a two-disc special edition DVD. It includes a commentary from Redford and a featurette on the revelation of the identity of Woodward's secret informant, Deep Throat: former FBI agent W. Mark Felt.

More important than the unmasking of Deep Throat, Redford said, are the similarities of Nixon's cover-up to the secretive nature of the current Bush administration.

Watergate, he said, "is happening every day. ... You can go right down the list ... of things like Watergate happening almost on a regular basis with this particular administration."

How one high achiever helped create a whole school of them.

As a Virginia principal, Sharon Byrdsong turned an under-performing public school into one of the state's highest achieving traditional middle schools. This award-winning educator achieved her goals the way she achieves all others—with dedication, determination and character. Byrdsong calls Regent University her perfect match. Could it be yours?

For more information about a fully accredited program in education, including career switcher tracks and accelerated master's degrees that can be earned in as little as one year, don't miss our next Washington, D.C. Campus Information Session.

Television

START YOUR NEILSENS: Beginning March 8, the Biography Channel gets a new series on track. Presumably believing blue-collar blue-staters aren't Bio's usual audience, the cable channel premieres "NASCAR: Driven to Win," featuring drivers' stories.

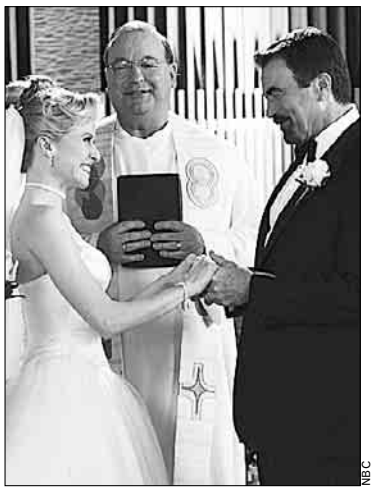

Funny Old World

A nutty new episode of 'Boston Legal' is vintage David E. Kelly

WACKY AS EVER | Tom Selleck guest stars on an episode of "Boston Legal" (10 p.m., ABC) that includes all of the cute tricks and comedic quirks that viewers of have come to expect from writer-producer David E. Kelley.

Starting with the cute, Shirley Schmidt's (Candice Bergen) ex-husband Ivan (Selleck) brings news of his impending marriage and asks Shirley to be his "best man." Missy, Ivan's younger bride-to-be, is a chirpy musical-theater type who may or may not be a snide dig at Broadway's Kristin Chenoweth. When Paul (Rene Auberjonois) hears Missy belt out a song about being her Daddy's little girl, he suddenly remembers that he has a daughter.

NBC

LOUD VOWS: Ivan and Missy tie the knot — with belting — in "Boston."

On the poignant front, Alan (James Spader) and Denny (William Shatner) take on the defense of a man accused in the mercy killing of his Alzheimer's-stricken wife. This gives Alan a chance to make his cause-of-the-week speech.

Watching "Boston Legal" is like eating a tub of ice cream. You know you shouldn't be stuffing yourself at 10 p.m., particularly with a confection so contrived and artificial. But it's pretty easy going down. KEVIN MCDONOUGH (UNITED FEATURE SYNDICATE)

ON TV TONIGHT

TRY WAITRESSING, HONEY

AMERICAN IDOL (8 p.m., Fox) If you've survived — or skipped — the phony-baloney audition/winnowing process, now's the time to tune in. The 12 female finalists belt their little hearts out; you get the first chance this season to stomp on one of their dreams.

PARTICLES AND PARTISANS

With networks running scared from NBC (two "NCIS" episodes, CBS? Really?), PBS steps up with a fascinating night of programming. At 8 p.m. NOVA explores "The Ghost Particle" — invisible thingies that fill up every inch of the cosmos. They're even in your probiscis right now! Get to know your neutrino with this investigation. At 9 p.m., FRONTLINE presents, "The Insurgency," a chilling look at the Iraqis who are battling Americans.

FRONTLINE/WGPH

AGAINST US: PBS interviews many Iraqi fighters in "The Insurgency."

OSCAR WHINERS

Welcome to chick-movie heaven with tonight's offering on TCM's "31 Days of Oscar"— FRIED GREEN TOMATOES at 8 p.m. and COAL MINER'S DAUGHTER at 10:15 p.m. Sniff. ARION BERGER (EXPRESS)

How to Get More Home for Your Money

A new report has just been released which identifies the 6 most common and costly mistakes that homebuyers make when moving to a large home.

Unlike the experience of buying a first home, when you're looking to move-up, and already own a home, there are certain factors that can complicate the situation. It's very important for you to understand these issues before you list your home for sale.

Not only is there the issue of financing to consider, but you also have to sell your present home at exactly the right time in order to avoid either the financial burden of owning two homes or, just as bad, the dilemma of having no place to live during the gap between closings.

In answer to this issue, industry insiders have prepared a free special report entitled, "6 Inside Strategies to Avoid Trade-Up Mistakes."

These six strategies will help you make informed choices before you put your home on the market in anticipation of moving to a larger home.

Call 866-791-1110
8 AM -7PM

Call NOW to find out what you need to know to make your move up to a larger home worry-free and without complications.

See-Worthy

A famed U.S. warship has been opened up for the navy-curious

When you step aboard the USS Salem, you won't have to give way to presidents or kings and queens or the like. They've already been there.

The one-time flagship of the U.S. Sixth Fleet in the Mediterranean and the Second Fleet in the Atlantic has served host to the former Shah of Iran, the king and queen of Greece, the president of Lebanon and other notables.

Built at the former Bethlehem Steel's Quincy Yard, launched March 25, 1947, and commissioned at the Boston Navy Yard on May 14, 1949, the Salem now is a museum moored near her birthplace.

Visitors to the heavy cruiser get the feeling right away that the warship is not so much restored as preserved, and they are right. The Salem came out of its 35-year stint in "mothballs" in October 1994 in very good shape, still bearing much of its original paint. Volunteers now keep the vessel shipshape, painting where needed and making repairs.

"I had a flashback," said John F. Connors of South Attleboro, Mass., who served in the U.S. Marine detachment to the Salem from 1956-58 and now is a volunteer guide and archivist. "I knew right where to go."

A visit to the Salem could easily be a two-trip event, because there is a lot to see. You could join in a guided tour, during which you will learn the history surrounding the well-traveled vessel. On another trip, you can take a self-guided tour using a map that shows the deck plans on the 717-foot ship. And you can do a lot of walking.

"If you stood the ship on end, it's taller than the [60-story] John Hancock building downtown Boston," said Michael Condon of Cohasset, Mass., executive director of the United States Naval Shipbuilding Museum and USS Salem.

You can poke around the Salem from stem to stern, and up to the bridge and the pilot house, with only certain areas or rooms not open to visitors — such as the archives room or the still-in-operation machine shop. Check out the restored barber shop and dentist office.

CHARLES KRUPA/AP

FUN AND GUN: The U.S.S. Salem's guns have never been fired in a military conflict.

Of special interest to lovers of history are the four "Memorial Rooms," filled with pictures, old military uniforms, swords, pistols and rifles and other memorabilia. Then there's the Model Exhibit Display Room — with a 12-foot shiny brass model of the USS St. Paul and dozens of models, small and large, of other ships.

Stop by the brig, where miscreants aboard the ship were put for breaking rules. Prisoners only slept in one of the two cells, and joined work crews during the day.

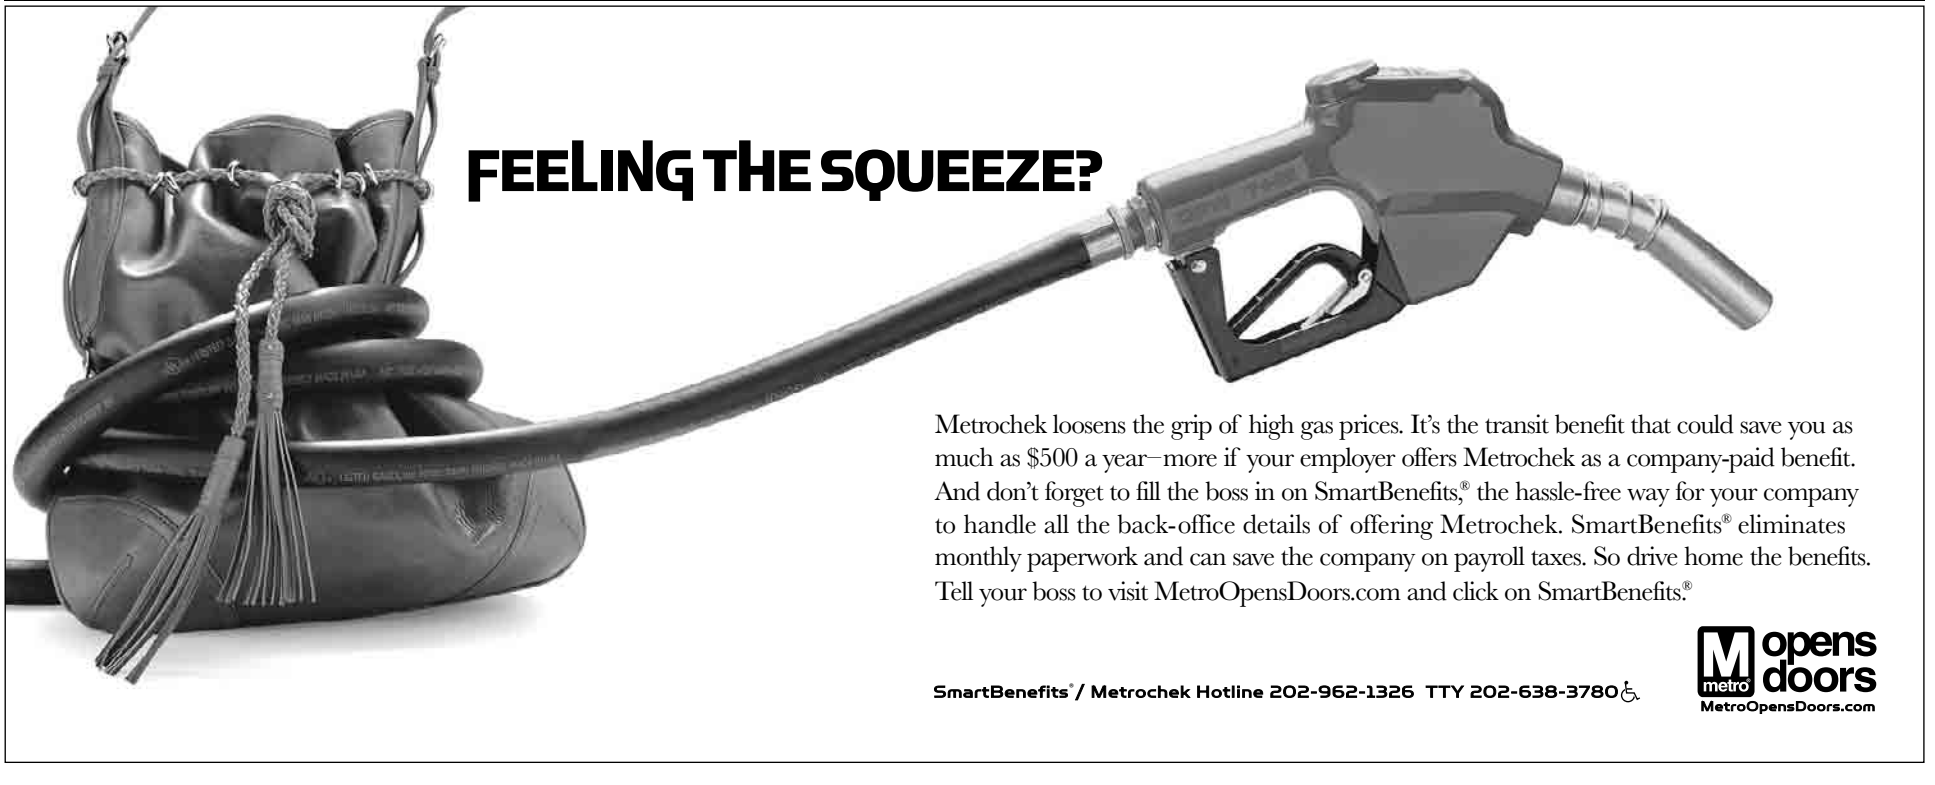

Note the garbage grinder which mashed the remains of meals until they were liquid, so that enemy ships would have nothing to follow when it was disposed of overboard.

After seeing where the crew ate and slept, the captain's and admiral's rooms above the main deck are quite a contrast.

Peek inside the turrets of the 8-inch guns forward or aft on the main deck. The ship also carries smaller cannon, including anti-aircraft batteries — none of which ever have been fired in anger.

The ship's mess rooms are available for birthday parties and other events.

Also on display outside next to the gangplank is a gray, two-person German sub captured during World War II. PHIL CANNADAY (AP)

Demand for products low in trans fat leads to new soy varieties

Concern about the heart risks of trans fats has caused a huge demand in the United States for a healthier new soybean oil, prompting food companies to recruit farmers to grow new varieties of the beans.

New soybean varieties contain a lower level of acids that cause food to become stale or rancid. That means the oil does not require hydrogenation, the process that increases trans fat content.

The food and restaurant industries have been snapping up the new oil since the Food and Drug Administration began requiring manufacturers to list trans fat content on food labels.

Darwin Carroll shows off the low-linolenic acid soybeans he grows on his farm.

"I'm personally impressed by how many products I pick up now and read the label and it has no trans fats at all, so I think the food industry has done a great job of making the transition," said Walter R. Fehr, an Iowa State University soybean researcher who helped develop the new varieties.

Typical soybeans contain about 7 percent linolenic acid. The new varieties have 1 percent or 3 percent.

Last season, farmers planted 160,000 acres of the new beans. This spring, farmers are expected to plant 750,000 acres, said Linda Funk, spokeswoman for the Iowa Soybean Promotion Board.

> "I think there is a reluctance because of a lack of a long history of these things, a fear of the unknown."
>
> JIM SUTTER
> ON FARMERS GROWING SOY VARIETIES

"The demand definitely is there and much greater than our supply at this point," Funk said.

Even with the rising demand, it has been difficult to get farmers to choose the new varieties, said Jim Sutter, a vice president of Cargill's grain and oilseed supply chain.

"There is a reluctance because of a lack of a long history of these things, a fear of the unknown," he said.

Cargill processed between 25 million and 30 million pounds of the low-linolenic acid soybeans last year, and Sutter predicts the market will continue to grow.

Among the companies buying the new soybean oil is Kellogg, which will use it in its Town House and Club crackers early this year.

Asoyia, a company that makes the new oil, said the Kellogg announcement had a big impact on the market. Asoyia nearly sold out of its supplies since Kellogg announced its effort to reduce trans fat content, said Ryan Kinneberg, a sales and marketing representative.

"That's a confidence booster there," Kinneberg said.

Darwin Carroll of Columbus Junction, Iowa, has been growing Asoyia's low-linolenic acid soybeans for three years. Although it takes a little extra work to ensure that the crop is kept separate from other soybeans, "the good outweighs the minor bad," he said.

Lace Forward

This knit goes from girly to glamorous

With the fashion world in such a romantic mood lately, lace has moved from bedroom to boardroom.

A lace collar or cuff on a blouse, or even a lace-trimmed camisole, instantly feminizes a menswear-style suit —another big trend for women these days. You'll also see more than traces of lace on lingerie, of course, as well as sportswear and eveningwear.

"It's definitely lace for evening this spring," says Michael Fink, senior fashion director at Saks Fifth Avenue. "Saks loves lace in faded pastel colors used in cocktail and evening gowns, all in a long and lean silhouette —no poufs."

On the spring runways, Monique Lhuillier, a lace veteran because of her bridal collection, showed a jade lace sleeveless pleated bodice sheath. Tracy Reese featured slim white jacquard pants with lace insets. Marc Jacobs previewed a pair of shimmering silver "pajamas" with lace at the hem. And Vera Wang embraced lace's lingerie legacy with a black lace "bed jacket."

Jill Stuart's collection was filled with delicate lace pieces that looked like they were rediscovered treasures from a trunk in the attic.

Stuart says she paid attention to the specific patterns on the lace because they convey a mood or message, and sometimes she'll combine several laces onto a single garment.

"The pattern may have a floral, Victorian or any number of handicraft qualities that greatly enhance your design and bring it to life," Stuart says.

Valerie Steele, director of the Museum at the Fashion Institute in Manhattan, says that lace always has been associated with luxury. In the 16th and 17th century, the lace trim often would be the most expensive part of a dress, she says, and men would wear lace cuffs and collars to show off their wealth. Lace would be taken off old garments and reused on new ones. That changed during the mid-1800s when most lace began to manufactured by machines instead of by hand.

"Lace has gone in and out (of fashion) since the beginning of the 20th century," Steele says. "It's still extensively used in lingerie and eveningwear, and we're in the middle of a highly decorative period. Clothes have become more divided between really expensive and really cheap. When you're getting really luxurious and expensive clothes, you want something special and lace gives a craftlike detail."

Lace also sends a mixed signal — sexy because of its peekaboo quality, yet still a symbol of sweetness and innocence, which further enhances its position as a fashion chameleon.

"Today's woman likes to have a hint of lace showing under a white blouse or have the top of a lacy camisole show. It's modern, sexy and accepted," says Barbara Lipton, vice present and general manager for fashion brands at Warnaco. Brands she oversees include J.Lo by Jennifer Lopez, Lejaby and Speedo underwear.

The shift to "everyday" lace versus "special occasion" lace — the kind reserved for one's wedding dress or bridal trousseau — happened as women decided they wanted to feel beautiful and feminine each and every day, Lipton says.

Lace crosses all segments of the intimate apparel wardrobe — from panty to pajamas. Looking ahead, Lipton predicts the crocheted look will be popular. "When you're choosing a lace, think about the subtle message. It's not about an age, it's about a mind-set." SAMANTHA CRITCHELL (AP)

The LACE TUXEDO BRA AND PANTY from Warner's combines satin and lace for a sexy (but not over-the-top) look that's comfy enough for every day.

JILL STUART'S collection for spring, far left, uses the handmade look of lace to add interest to day- and eveningwear; or keep your lace under wraps with a trimmed camisole from J. LO, left.

Post-Tween Skincare

Some products feel drugstore. That's not a slam — if your skin is young and near-perfect, spending scads of dollars on specialized products doesn't make a lot of sense. The ALMAY 3-STEP SKINCARE system (cleanser, $10, moisturizer, $12, toner, $9) is a decidedly drugstore product. The cucumber-infused potions are so mild, they barely feel like they're working. But to sensitive skin they're kind and gentle. The line is transitional skincare — it's not for the Stridex set, nor for ladies who buy all their cosmetics at department stores. Try it if you're just graduating from Clean 'n Clear. HOLLY J. MORRIS (EXPRESS)

Hit the Breaks

While GARNIER COLOR BREAKS ($7, drugstores) won't stop us from funding that new addition on our colorist's house, it's a cheap and effective method of highlighting. There's no hole-ridden hat to pull your hair through — just mix the color and drag the mascara-like brush through 8 to 10 strands at a time. We recommend recruiting a friend or bewildered husband to help, because it's hard to reach the back of the head. The color was slightly less dramatic than depicted on the box, but natural-looking, evenly spaced highlights gave hair more depth and dimension. KRISTEN PAGE-KIRBY (EXPRESS)

Vanilla Ice | Ice Ice Baby

Rapper VANILLA ICE, aka Rob Van Winkle, was online Friday to stop, collaborate and listen to reader questions — and update us on what he's been up to. Check out the hook while our editors revolve it | washingtonpost.com/liveonline

Yo Vanilla — do you still rock the mic like a vandal?

Oh, of course, that'll never stop. A lot of people don't remember anything since "Ice, Ice Baby," but I've got three records out since then and they're all successes — but not commercially. All three records are platinum and the latest is called "Platinum Underground" because I can still have a fan base without radio and MTV, because that's not the only way. There's [satellite] radio and the Internet.

What do you think of Eminem?

I'm glad there's another white guy out there having success because it's all been on my shoulders for so long. There's a lot of talent — white, Puerto Rican or Jew. If you've got skills, you've got em. More than half of all the hip-hop record sales are white people and I think that might be a result of my record helping people to accept hip-hop. ... It's cool to see Eminem. I don't have any hate on him. I have fun poking at him on my new records though.

What are your critics saying now? How did you deal with them then versus how do you deal with them now?

I just kind of shoot the finger to the critics. I don't give sh-- what a critic says. To me a critic is some loser who has no idea ... someone with an opinion. We all have opinions. No offense, but what makes them dictate what is cool and what is not? F the critics.

How did the name "Vanilla Ice" originate? Why is the name so focused on your whiteness?

Breakdancing. I actually hated it. My friends were calling me that, taking stabs at me. All my friends were black and Mexican. I was the only white kid in our group and had to work hard to be accepted. ... I'm sure it stems from my complexion, you know, but the "Ice" came in when my friends would say "cold as ice" — if you could rap and battle people you'd say, "Dude, that was ice cold." Funny how "ice" changed its meaning. Now it's all about bling. Back in the day, Ice T, Ice Cube ... Ice was cool.

What are you currently up to?

I've been really busy, playing over 100 shows per year for the past year. Just got back from Russia and played huge stadiums over there — 35,000 people a show. They're out of that iron claw thing now, so any American act that plays there is really huge.

Troubling Perspective on Iraq

I WAS SADDENED by the story "Visions of War" in Friday's Express as Marine Benjamin Busch described his ignorant perception of Iraqis by stating "the feeling I get from Iraqis is that their thinking is more Bedouin than Western" because they live day to day. I would have expected a Marine like Major Busch to know what it felt like to live in a warzone knowing and fearing that everyday may likely be your last. For those insightful enough to catch it, Hurricane Katrina showed us Americans than we are no better or different than the rest of the world. Take away our running water, our electricity, our jobs, our loved ones and our hope and you will see people behaving chaotically. Do this for 15 straight years and we may start to understand why ordinary Iraqis do not plan for the day after tomorrow.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) What you see and subsequently most want may be out of reach during the greater portion of this complicated day. Make progress slowly.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) You can negotiate a bargain for yourself, if you play your cards right — and curb the temptation to reveal too much too soon.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) You're in the mood to be admired, so it's time for you to put your best foot forward and take advantage of opportunities presented.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) A surprise announcement will have you preparing for a major new effort to begin before you know it. Are you really ready to be in charge.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) If you're expecting a rival to meet you halfway, you are sorely mistaken. The competition is likely to heat up considerably at this time.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) What you are willing to do for another, someone is very likely willing to do for you in return. This is the beginning of a beautiful friendship.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) While others may be employing more care and caution than usual, you'll have the chance to be a little more daring and experimental.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) Be sure that you aren't going to all this trouble just for the money. If your heart's not in it, you're not likely to do a good job.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21) You should be able to transform the routine into the new and unexpected — simply by engaging your imagination and trusting yourself.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21) A secret attraction from afar may actually come to life in a new and unexpected way. What results may prove to last a while.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Feel free to accentuate that part of yourself that you think is outstanding at this time; others will flock to you if you are solid, confident.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) Travel may take you further from home — and further from your planned and charted course — than you had expected.

DO figure it out, even it takes you all damn day. Puzzle games are a great way to sharpen your critical thinking — which will be crucial for finding another job after being fired for playing Blueprint (Teagames.com) too much.
